Serbia Youth Leadership Program

Program Description:

The Serbia Youth Leadership Program (SYLP) supports the development of community activism, leadership skills, respect for diversity, and civic education in youth from Serbia and the United States. This short-term cultural and educational exchange between Serbian and American high school students and teachers or community leaders will teach participants valuable skills of social entrepreneurship such as identifying and diagnosing community problems, using new technologies to communicate effectively, and teamwork and consensus building.

In addition to approximately 54 Serbian students aged 15-17, four to six teachers or community leaders will travel to the United States to participate in a four-week program that enables the participants to gain skills that will help them to launch a successful Youth Venture— a community-based project—once returning to Serbia. Participants will take part in a week-long orientation in Washington, DC that prepares them for their two and a half week program in a U.S. community. Students will be divided into three groups and accompanied by one or two youth leaders from Serbia. Each group will travel to a U.S. community, to live with American host families, and to actively participate in a program that focuses on a specific theme. In addition to spending time with the youth participants, separate programming will be provided for adult participants. Each city has a different theme;

- participants in Minneapolis, Minnesota will focus on student activism and expanding educational opportunities;
- participants in San Francisco, California will examine the immigrant experience in the United States to focus on equality issues and ethnic tolerance in a multi-ethnic, pluralistic society;
- participants in Seattle, Washington will focus on grassroots activism from the local to the global levels.

SYLP participants will return to Washington DC to participate in an end-of-program conference where experiences from the three host communities will be shared and evaluated for possible Youth Venture initiatives in Serbia. After returning to Serbia, participants will take part in a Community Panel—made up of potential funders, non-governmental organizations, representatives from partner organizations, and U.S. Youth Venturers—where they will present plans for their venture. The panel will offer suggestions and give guidance designed to make the ventures as successful as possible. During July 2010, 15 U.S. participants, including teachers and community leaders from the U.S. host communities will travel to Serbia for a two-week exchange program. SYLP finalists from Serbia will be eligible to apply to host their U.S. counterparts. All SYLP participants will have the opportunity to interact with the U.S. participants during their exchange in Serbia.

The Serbia Youth Leadership Program will enable participants to:

- develop their sense of civic responsibility and commitment to community development;
- become part of a group of community activists who will share their knowledge and skills with their peers through positive action and collaboration;
- foster understanding and build relationships with youth from different ethnic, religious, and national groups;
- promote mutual understanding between the people of Serbia and the United States.
